

Manos A La Obra! Anthems, Protest Songs, Skits

How to Use Music, Songs & Storytelling for Social Justice and Change

Explore theatre-making, songwriting and storytelling as a pathway to liberation and tool for igniting change through a workshop featuring selected pieces from “Olivia O, The Musical”, an upcoming production that features the impact of family separation policies at the US border through the eyes of a young Guatemalan girl, Olivia Ortiz.

Join playwright/lyricists from Olivia O in this experiential learning opportunity that explores how you can energize your community group or social movement through songs, music and story.

Weave the World Through Song, Dance & Fun!

An introduction to the performing arts for children

Join in this day of acting, music and dance for children ages 5-12. Interactive, engaging and fun, this one-day workshop focuses on the performing arts as a way to help students develop self-confidence, discipline, empathy, and compassion, while also nurturing creativity in a safe environment.
